either of the two men who caused the explosion from a nearby school. One of them is Leroy A. Godeau, fellow student at the divinity school when Irwin tried to throw in a bomb that resulted from an argument over a question of ethics.

The other is Professor Angus Macdonald, who restrained Irwin as he gripped Godeau in his powerful arms and hands.

Both are being guarded by plainclothesmen by day and police have been detailed to watch their sleeping quarters at night.

GIRLS ASK PROTECTION

Not are they the only ones under police protection. Because of the broadcast warnings of medical authorities, who treated Irwin at insane asylums, fear impelled girls to quit her Long Island home. She was unwilling to appreciate that she was in danger. But she finally gave in and was taken to a spot a number of miles from her home, there to be guarded 24 hours a day.

Her husband, Joseph Kudner, whose wife of Irwin's mad infatuation for Mrs. Kudner had set police on the man's trail, was also under guard. He was accompanied by a plainclothes police protector every where he went today.

Macdonald's own alarm after another was reported from the eight states asked by New York to contribute on the capture of the missing sculptor.

LANDED IN BOSTON

Likeliest of all was the possibility that Irwin had made his way out of New York to Baltimore on Saturday and there boarded a boat for Boston.

Irwin had escaped from a 32nd street lodging house that day by a matter of minutes. Detectives were on their way to seize him when he fled, abandoning his hat.

Roland Hopkins, steward on the S.S. Kent, flying between Baltimore and Boston, reported to police in the Massachusetts capital that he was almost certain that Irwin had boarded the boat which made port at Boston Monday.

The Kent was on her way back to Baltimore and police were waiting there to thoroughly interview the steward. They had with them several photographs of the fugitive.

"NOT ABOARD NOW"

In response to a police radio-gram, Captain Howard E. Blake of the Kent, flashed back from sea that he had no knowledge of Irwin and that he certainly was not on the ship.

But that wasn't what police wanted to know. They desired, however, that it was useless to try to explain by radio and that they would wait for Irwin to be sighted at Baltimore.

There was also another alarm in Boston today when police received a telephone call that Irwin was on a Boston Elevated bus in the downtown section.

Special service squad detectives chased the bus through traffic, halted it at Essex street and Atlantic avenue, and questioned every person in the machine. The alarm was unfounded.

PUBLIC IS WARNED

Meanwhile, in this city, squads of plainclothesmen were concentrating in the Bowery, in the belief that Irwin may drift there for a "handout" meal, or to beg money from the public.

The public at large was warned to watch for any plainclothesman wearing the description of the man and to call for police help immediately, if approached.

REPORT FROM DOCTOR

Police fear for the safety of Mrs. Irwin, who was greatly increased by a report from a noted psychiatrist who had the aping young sculptor under observation at Bellevue Hospital a few years ago.

Chief Police Inspector Lyons would accept the alienist as terming the fugitive a "killer" or "a person of conflict" but to "chase people to death." Still citing the psychiatrist, the inspector said:

"If cornered, Irwin will attempt to kill opponents with his bare hands, and will then kill himself as the last instant."

On the basis of this new information, police tonight put this additional description on the telephone.

Robert Irwin sometimes uses name of Adams. When broke frequently panhandles, sleeps in parks, railroad stations, subway stations or bus terminals. Has a soft smooth way about him. He has worked on a farm and may seek such work.

Police Commissioner Valentine has ordered every man in the New York police department to watch for the fugitive sculptor. Two thousand photographs of the suspected slayer were distributed among detectives and every railroad terminal, ferry and subway line was closely watched.

Inspector J. J. Lyons specified several physical characteristics which should identify the fugitive:

"He is heavier than we originally stated. He scales about 160 pounds and is very strong. When enraged he possesses the strength of five men. He is impulsive, easily enraged. He is a victim of paranoia and dementia praecox."

Chief is his favorite form of conflict. When aroused, he reaches both hands swiftly, with fingers spread wide, and leaps at a victim's throat. If cornered, he is the type that would seek death, probably by leaping out a high window.

Joseph Gedeon's wounded head, injured during his severe "third degree" in New York's Easter triple murder, of which he was completely exonerated, is nursed and soothed by Mrs. Ethel Kudner, his remaining beautiful daughter. It is said by police that love for Mrs. Kudner caused Robert Irwin, divinity student, to kill her mother and sister and their lodger.

OTHER CHARACTERISTICS

Citing additional means of identification, Inspector Lyons said:

"Irwin walks with a rolling, lumbering gait. The right side of his mouth is twisted. He does not wear glasses nor use tobacco. A scar, 1 1/2 inches long, below the nose, marks his abdomen."

"When panhandling, and he is the type that prefers panhandling to robbery by violence, he possesses a smooth, suave manner and pleading ingratiating voice. But when aroused by jealousy or revenge he will kill without hesitation. He is the very type of man who would commit this triple murder."

Wanted for Triple Murder

Here is the teletype alarm flashed from New York Police Headquarters through eight States for the arrest of Robert Irwin, sculptor, in the Easter Sunday murder:

"Arrest for triple homicide this city Robert 'Bob' Irwin, last known address, 36 State street, Canton, N. Y. He is of U. S. nativity, 29, five feet nine, 140 pounds, stocky build, dark blond wavy hair, high forehead, eyes squinty. When last seen was wearing black overcoat with velvet collar, tan fedora hat, light scarf. Suit may be black with pencil stripes, or bluish gray with pin stripe; black shoes, size 8, which were made in Canada; medium blue shirt with black stripe, made by the New Way Process Co. of Pennsylvania."

"Irwin is a sculptor, but may be employed, or seeking employment, in taxidermy work or decorative flower establishments. Kindly make inquiries at art clubs and such places, where he might seek employment. Lodges in cheap rooming houses and was formerly an inmate of the Rockland State Insane Asylum. May be hitch-hiking to Philadelphia, Pa., or Washington, D. C. Also check morgues for suicides and give this case the necessary attention."

(Signed) "LEWIS J. VALENTINE, Police Commissioner, New York, N. Y."

Commissioner Valentine said later he would order the message revised to read "murder" instead of "homicide" as sent out.

Gedeon Plans 50 Years of Love Bliss

New York, April 7 (INS).—Depressed by family and business woes, Joseph Gedeon, whose wife and daughter were strangled in the Easter Sunday triple murder, today looked toward a brighter future with "one of his little sweethearts."

The diminutive upholsterer says his business is wrecked and he has no money. He also faces a charge of having a gun in his possession while on a permit. But, turning to romance, he said:

"I've had to fight for my life. I love life. I want to live 50 years more and enjoy it. I won't give up that determination."

The elusive upholsterer says his business is wrecked and he has no money. He also faces a charge of having a gun in his possession while on a permit. But, turning to romance, he said:

"I've had to fight for my life. I love life. I want to live 50 years more and enjoy it. I won't give up that determination."

Robert Irwin was very quiet. He never threatened me. He never did anything that I'd think could lead to a crime like this. I wasn't scared of him when he was living in our home.

"Robert" was very quiet. He kept regular hours. There was never any strange expression on his face that would make me feel he was dangerous or insane."

SAYS HE NEVER PROPOSED

Ethel emphatically denied that Irwin had been rejected from the Gedeon home because he was a student after it became apparent that he was smitten with Irwin's sister, not Robert's Mrs. Kudner said:

"We never forced him out. He left perfectly quietly to go to the hospital. I don't know what for."

Irwin went to the hospital, it was ascertained, because of his observation that his sex urges were interfering with his work. He was said to have demanded that an operation be performed.

Ethel could not recall that Irwin showed any violent emotion when she accepted the marriage proposal of her present husband, Joseph Kudner, she said.

"Robert never proposed to me. I knew he was very fond of me, of course. He wasn't in love with Ronnie."

SHE DOUBTS HIS GUILT

"I don't think he committed the crime because he was fearful of opposition from mother to his interest in her. After all, I wasn't a baby and could make my own decisions."

It was Joseph Kudner, who, with his first wife, was a possible suspect, Ethel explained.

"I thought of one definitely when we gave Irwin's name to the police," she asked.

"I thought of everyone who had been around us and Robert Irwin was one of them. Kudner did not share his wife's skepticism about Irwin in the role of triple-murderer. He declared:

"I'm absolutely sure Irwin was the killer. A deep psychopathic process resulted in the murderous impulse. I have no certainty, not on anything Irwin did when we knew him, but on evidence produced by police plus my information about his unbalanced tendencies."

"Another thing that is significant when he came to New York he didn't go to the Gedeon apartment for a room, and he certainly would not have been in the house."

DENIES THREATS TO HER

"He went nearby. But avoided seeing Ronnie and her mother. There must have been some reason."

Kudner admitted he and his wife were leaving for the country. But he said that if any woman believed he in any actual danger from the sculptor.

Mrs. Kudner continued as Mrs. Irwin's sister, she was as nervous as ever about the police and the threatening letters sent to her mother and sister by the former divinity student.

"He never sent me any letters. And if he ever sent any strange communications to mother and Ronnie they didn't say anything to us about them—and I'm sure they would have."

"We have seen him a good many months ago."

Democrats Hold Own in St. Louis

St. Louis, April 7 (AP).—In the first test of political strength in a large city since last November's general election, Democrats retained control of the St. Louis administration today, but failed to oust the long major Republican office-holder, Comptroller Louis Noffs.

Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann, re-elected by a plurality of 63,170, the largest ever given a mayoralty nominee here, carried 34 Democratic candidates for alderman into office with him.

IRWIN'S SISTER AND 3 GUARDED FROM KILLER

New York, April 7 (INS).—Robert Irwin may be a murderer to police, but to attractive Ethel Kudner he is still the quiet, mild-mannered boarder she once knew.

She is bewildered by the police talk of Irwin's jealousy over her animosity to her mother and sister because they opposed his attraction, his insatiable determination to get them out of the way.

"Why would he do it?" Ethel demanded. "What could his motive be?"

"He never threatened me. He never did anything that I'd think could lead to a crime like this. I wasn't scared of him when he was living in our home."

"Robert" was very quiet. He kept regular hours. There was never any strange expression on his face that would make me feel he was dangerous or insane."

WOMAN TESTIFIES IN BROWN SUIT

Stated in his expensive automobile, Royal Brown, famous author and magazine writer, and Mrs. Head Burgess used to spend hours at a time in front of her cottage to testify in Suffolk Court today.

On other occasions they were seen driving together in his high-powered car, touring the ocean resort of Hyannis, Mass., and author made frequent calls to Mrs. Burgess through a neighbor's telephone, while they both lived at Schmitt, the court was told.

Mrs. Louise M. Sedgwick of Garban Avenue, Brookline, gave the testimony that she and her husband, Clifford T. Burgess, Alton aviator, is bringing against Brown, who termed Mrs. Burgess "my literary inspiration."

After that, Mrs. Sedgwick said her summers in a cottage at Ocean Beach, Calif., were the last days of her cottage face the front of the cottage which Mr. and Mrs. Burgess used to occupy.

From this vantage point, she said she observed the author and Mrs. Burgess parked in front of the Burgess cottage many summer evenings, where they talked for an hour or perhaps two hours at a time.

Mrs. Burgess received telephone calls through her telephone Mrs. Sedgwick said. She would receive many a five or six call a week from Brown, from the Boston woman testified.

With her testimony, William A. Schmitt, attorney, presented the case for Burgess, considered by the court.

John A. Vaughan, Brown's lawyer, was to present evidence in the defense the afternoon Mrs. Brown himself will probably testify.

2 Bay State Child Brides Happy at 'Rainbow's End'

BOTH EXPECT TO BE 'BEST HOUSEWIVES'

Two Massachusetts child brides found their "best of both worlds" at the end of the rainbow today, one free to pursue marital happiness after suspension of court charges, the other honeymooning after legal obstacles to their union were removed.

Geraldine Helen Murphy, 14, was stationed in the home of her mother-in-law, Mrs. Edward Murphy, at 1515 Third street, Dorchester, waiting the bridegroom of her choice while her 20-year-old husband, Joseph Murphy, was looking for a job.

Mary O'Day, also 14, and her 16-year-old husband, Raymond E. O'Day, were established in a rooming house at the end of the rainbow at a Water lake after their marriage by a justice of the peace in the Water town hall.

For six weeks Mary had sought permission to wed. First, her father objected. When he relented and gave parental blessing, the couple, father, had rushed here from New York to see that his child was not sent away to an institution. Mrs. Jordan pressed a 16-year-old detention charge against him when he appeared in court and today he was in Charles Street Jail in lieu of $500 bail.

Geraldine Jordan Murphy, child bride, and her husband, Joseph, who started life anew today in the home of the bridegroom's parents after joyful outcome of skirmish with law.

"Everything's going to be all right," insisted Geraldine. "I was glad to see daddy after all these years. He'll get out all right and maybe he and mother will reunite. Anyway, Joe and I are free again and we have our whole lives to look forward to."

had to wait for court permission, which was issued in Worcester. Then the bride, clad in a white gown, was escorted to the altar by her father, the bridegroom, the pastor, and the bridesmaids.

The wedding was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. William E. O'Day, at 1515 Third street, Dorchester. The bride and groom were the guests of honor.

The whole business of her being in the juvenile court to stop her father from taking her to the mill tomorrow and from then on we will be just another husband and wife, trying to get by and make an honest living.

"And what will you see the kind of housewife I'm going to be. I can cook, bread and everything."

There was only one fly in the ointment. Mrs. Willard Jordan, the bride's mother, had filed the abduction charge against her daughter and Judge Walsh filed the abduction charge against

QUEEN Tries on Her CROWN

12 JEWELERS KEPT BUSY

By EVAN MORTON

Copyright, 1937, by Universal Pictures Corporation. April 7 (US)—King George VI and Queen Elizabeth paid a surprise visit to Westminster Abbey, studied in detail the coronation preparations and spent a busy day fitting the Queen's new crown and inspecting the official coronation uniforms.

At the abbey the royal couple studied the location of their thrones on the coronation dais and examined blueprints prepared for the lavish ceremonial procession by the Duke of Norfolk.

Inspects Crown

The Queen, attired in a spring coat of blue and blue straw hat, then proceeded to the crown jewellers, where the huge Robinson diamond that forms the sparkler in Queen Mary's crown was set in the new crown Queen Elizabeth will receive from the Archbishop of Canterbury on May 12.

The Queen had a fitting of the crown shell, which she found snug and comfortable. To the lady-in-waiting who accompanied her the royal visitor frankly admitted she was thrilled by the Robinson diamond.

Twelve craftsmen, devoting their exclusive time to work on the crown, hailed as Queen Elizabeth entered, as did two young women engaged in the highly skilled task of polishing the platinum in the crown.

Congratulating them all, the Queen addressed the foreman: "This is a remarkable piece of work you have done. You must have worked very hard to get the crown so far advanced."

After her fitting of the crown, Queen Elizabeth examined a quantity of other jewelry being prepared for the coronation. Among these were the tiny coronets for the Princesses Elizabeth and Mary, Rose, and a special coronet for the Duchess of Northumberland, her newly appointed mistress of robes.

Officials of the city election department today undertook a recount of votes cast in Ward Nine, Roxbury, for a successor to the late City Councilor Richard D. Gleason.

Apparent winner was Gleason's sister, Mrs. Mildred Gleason Harris, by a margin of 188. The recount was demanded by her closest opponent, Ernest L. Cooke.

CHERRY Trees Now in BLOOM

SO HERE'S 'DO'S' AND 'DO NOT'S'

Washington, April 7 (AP)

—The capital's Japanese cherry trees—which have become about as famous as Japan's—burst into first bloom today.

Thousands of out-of-towners will attend a festival tomorrow, so the time has come to present some bloom hints.

1—You may not pick a spray for the parlor mantle—the police would handle you the same as if you had tried to borrow a column from the front of the Supreme Court building.

2—You may not spread a picnic lunch beneath the trees—the ground is odd and damp, and somebody would snoop in the pie. 3—You may not propose to your girl beneath them, for it's too public and the police keep you moving.

Now for what you may do: 1—You may take all the snapshots you want to, and you may point if you can find a vacant spot.

2—You may ride past the trees in your auto, but traffic is so heavy that it's like trying to run through a hedge with an open umbrella.

3—You may walk beneath them until you drop.

The city of Tokyo gave the trees to the United States at the suggestion of Mrs. William Howard Taft. Shipped as a token of good will and high esteem, the first trees reached America in 1906 full of gall worms and fungus.

The agriculture department burned them, and an international incident arose. Philander C. Knox, then Secretary of State, whispered to Count Yungoku Uchida, the Japanese envoy, that another shipment would be most welcome. In 1913 a fungicide was arrived. Incidentally, these are not the same kind of cherry trees that George Washington assailed with his hatchet—these have no fruit, just snuff.

Wally as Duke's Heir CONTRACT TO PROTECT FIANCEE

By ALFRED TYRNAUER

Stumped again by divorcee's sister, Sir Walford, Austria, April 7 (US)—The Duke of Windsor let it be known today that he proposes to sue to annul a marriage contract which would designate Mrs. Wallis Simpson as the heiress to the bulk of his fortune in the event of his death.

His determination was strongly opposed by Lord Leighton-Coleman, Piers Leigh, his countryman from 1919 to 1926, and his friend, who was known as the Duke's "squire" and a series of interviews with "squire" prominent in England.

FEARS INDIVISIBLE
After a medical operation, Colonel Leigh broached the subject of financial independence. The Duke set him a demand—that he be paid with absolute control over the funds representing a sort of annuity for the rest of his life, as he is to turn over, in the royal family.

Colonel Leigh repeated the condition in the reigning lady, which is that the family be indivisible. And that the Duke's estate have been covered for centuries. He threatened to annul the contract, an annual income and forgo a Duke's former equity advised.

KEEKS REMAINS FIRM
The Duke retorted, however, that it is likely there will be no issue. The estate will be in large measure inherited by Mrs. Simpson and her heirs.

Metropolitan's 'La Traviata'

Thrills Fashionables

By BETTY ALDEN

WE DON'T KNOW whether the Metropolitan Opera has taken a tip from the lavish productions of the movies, or whether it is merely an indication of the return to prosperity, but charming music rendered by the best voices is not the only beauty of the opera being presented this week. All the productions thus far have been staged with elaborate, lavish settings and costumes, which are a beautiful show in themselves. . . .

Two years ago at this time, the reviewers who attended the Met's performance of "La Traviata," deplored the use of faded and shabby scenery . . . but last evening's audience at "La Traviata," was unanimous in its praise of the splendid new settings and colorful rich raiment of the singers . . .

Bidu Sayao, the young Portuguese coloratura who is a recent acquisition of the Metropolitan, sang the role of the immortal Violetta whose tragic love story is based on the story of Camille which has become so familiar recently through the movies. . . . The star was a dainty and feminine heroine and equally lovely in her white elaborate, lavish settings and costumes, which are a beautiful show in themselves. . . .

Two years ago at this time, the reviewers who attended the Met's performance of "La Traviata," deplored the use of faded and shabby scenery . . . but last evening's audience at "La Traviata," was unanimous in its praise of the splendid new settings and colorful rich raiment of the singers . . .

Evidently this opera is one of Peggy Hardwick's favorites, for she listened with rapt attention and was humming the arias when she strolled through the lobby. . . . we recall having seen her at the same opera before, but she never looked any prettier than in her American Beauty gown of moire, made on semi-buffet with wide bands of shirred velvet outlining the low "V" neck and puff sleeves. . . . She was with her mother, Mrs. Hasting Hardwick. . . .

Gown of Silvery Blue Lame

MARJORIE SALTSTONSTALL and Mrs. Morgan Harris were bubbling over with enthusiasm for the opera and covered a lot of ground as they rushed through the lobbies searching for friends. . . . Marjorie's gown was a simply fashioned silvery blue lame affair, and Mrs. Harris' a billowy affair of navy tulle over pink tulle which gave it a sort of misty gray effect. . . . with it she wore a wide navy and pink sash. . . . Mrs. Charles Goddard wore the essence of chic in a soft gray tulle gown with several tiers of fringe around the skirt and a fluffy cape. . . . Her navy white hair was adorned with three diamond combs and she wore a diamond necklace. . . .

Diamonds also adorned many other lily-white throats. . . . Mrs. James J. Phelan's glitzy gown of emerald satin was topped with a unique over-the-shoulder tulle. . . . Mrs. W. C. A. met yesterday to discuss plans for the dance which will be given at the Metropolitan on Monday for a vacation in Bermuda. . . .

And Mrs. HENRY K. CURTIS (Marjorie Estabrook) sailed on Monday for a vacation in Bermuda. . . .

Cunning Gown of Turquoise Moire

MRS. ROBERT FARRINGTON and her daughter, Joan, have been regular attendants at every opera so far. . . . last evening shoulder Joan wore a cunning gown of turquoise moire, off the shoulder style, with a white fur muff and a Juliet tulle party. . . . Jennie and Margie McKean wore identical white fur capes with feathered shoulders with their pastel frocks, and attended with their grandmother, Mrs. M. Greene Haughton, who wore a black ostrich cape with her black sheer gown flamed with asters of all colors. . . . Another "eye-compelling" gown was Mrs. George S. West's white feather one which topped a wide skirted tulle frock of burgundy red. . . .

Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller made her first appearance at the Metropolitan this season. . . . having just arrived from the South to prepare for her middle box in the Golden Horseshoe. . . . Mrs. Charles Newhall promaded in royal blue trimmed with ermine. . . . Mrs. James Torbert, who attended with Dr. Torbert, had her hair in the intermission with their daughter, Anne, and the latter's fiancé, Horace A. White. . . . Anne's lovely turquoise gown, with a full length pleated chiffon cape, swirled around her ankles and the yellow flowers on the front reflected the lights of her blonde hair. . . .

Mrs. Thomas Claffin took time off from her preparations for the new dance program and some of the other directors of the W. C. A. are planning for next Tuesday evening, for the opera and the charming ballet in the third act which is a colorful interlude in the love story of Violetta. . . . Barbara Bremer was escorted by Nat Clark and both Dottie and Patty Preston were with a group of friends. . . .

Also plumped in the throng were Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Bacon, Betty Soile in one of the new candy striped gowns, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Devine, Mrs. Frank Stewart, Anne Howard, Mr. and Mrs. John Moran, Peggy Blake, Mrs. I. Tucker Burr, and several ropes of fine pearls around her throat, Elinor Fay and Mr. and Mrs. William Tudor Gardner. . . .

MRS. NATHAN W. TALBOT

Caught in the flash of the photographer's bulbs as they attended one of the performances of the current season of opera at the Boston Opera House, were Mrs. Nathan Talbot (Anne Perry) and Miss Priscilla Dennett with her fiancé, John W. Goodrich, Jr. Mrs. Talbot is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs.

JOHN W. GOODRICH, JR.

Henry Haines Perry of Dover. Miss Dennett, who has set the date for her wedding to Mr. Goodrich for May 14, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl P. Dennett of Beacon street. Mr. Goodrich's father, Wallace Goodrich, is one of the directors of the Boston Opera Association.

Bidu Sayao Brilliant in 'La Traviata' Role

By RUTH MARSTERS

The Metropolitan's presentation of "La Traviata" last evening in the Boston Opera House, brought one of the most important of the season's debuts before these audiences for the first time in the person of Bidu Sayao.

The warmth of her reception was more than justified in the exquisite grace with which her performance as Violetta was filled from beginning to end.

Though her voice is stigmatized by lovelessness of quality rather than power, her musical handling of it is excellent and her dramatization of the role was forceful in its intensity of pathos.

Such is the very nature of the romance that it is not enough for those who would portray the leading role to simply sing. The general appearance and personalities of Violetta and Alfredo are too clearly outlined in the imagination of all to admit of concessions to incongruities in either.

That Mrs. Sayao's appearance was one of fragile beauty, that her personality in the role was authentically tinged with nervous sensuality, was therefore extremely gratifying.

As Giorgio Germont, Lawrence Tibbett made his usual artistic contributions to the success of the whole.

Mr. Tibbett appears to have the rare faculty of being always in his best voice—always in character. The character of the elder Germont of all concerned.

Junior League Book Drive Keeps Many Girls Busy

Books which tell tales of travel and high adventure usually lead sober, routine lives themselves, but the books and magazines collected by the members of the Junior League have left the dusty quietude of shelves and forgotten corners of houses all over Boston and the suburbs, and will sail out on the seven seas in a few days.

Each year the Junior League stages a drive to assist the American Merchant Marine library in collecting these books and magazines to supply sailors and isolated light-house tenders with interesting and instructive reading material. Number 122A Newbury street, which is the temporary headquarters of the drive, is a beehive of activity.

The group of workers is being directed by Miss Dorothy Eickman and Miss Charlotte Ives, and a telephone call will bring one of the following girls to your door for the books: Carrie Neal Augustine, Josephine Emery, Rosemond Emerson, Marion Leson, Katherine Newbold, Joan Pratt, Marjorie Heard, Mrs. Whitworth Pierce, Mrs. Richard P. Walters, Jr., Peggy Pierce, Faith Thorton, Barbara Putnam, Julia Barbour, Anne Meane, Jane Matthews, Margaret Bigelow and Nancy Hill.

Miss Geraldine and Miss Elizabeth Timmins are collecting in Groton, Margaret Spencer in Newton, Mary Strong in Needham, Harriett Cole in Andover, Mrs. Lee Gordon Kendall in Framingham, Mary Elizabeth Clarke in Brookline, Mrs. Lyon Weyburn in the North Shore, Sarah Bradlee, Miss Margaret and Miss Edith Sperry in Milton; Allos Plimpton in Norwood, Madeline Jackson in Westwood, Mrs. Francis G. Shaw in Chestnut Hill, Mrs. George Coughlin in Swampscott, Mrs. Walter E. Robb in Winton with Frances Holmes and Mrs. Edward L. Boston in Newton.

Dorchester Ceremony For Mary Sullivan

CALLA LILIES and palms will decorate St. Gregory's Church in Dorchester for the fashionable ceremony next Saturday morning at which Mary Fensholt Sullivan becomes the bride of Dr. Thomas Maxwell Connolly of Dorchester.

Gilbert Sullivan, a member of the Legislature, will give his sister in marriage. Officiating at the ceremony will be Rt. Rev. Francis X. Dolan, D. D., and breakfast and reception to the bridal pair will be held at the Copsey-Plaza.

The bride-elect's sister, Helen, will be her only attendant. Serving as the best man will be his brother, Donald F. Connolly of Willsimantic, Conn. The other corps will be headed by Richard J. Sullivan of Dorchester, one of the bride's brothers. Others will be John J. Sullivan of Dorchester, and Gilbert and James Sullivan of Hull.

Following a motor trip South, the couple will make their home in Dorchester.

Miss Sullivan, who is very active in the Young Democrats' League and Phi Delta Delta, national women's honorary society, was graduated from Portia Law School and is a member of the Massachusetts bar.

A round of parties has been honoring the future bride. Mrs. Philip Sweeney was hostess at a buffet supper at her home in East Milton and the bride-elect was honored at a luncheon at the Ritz restaurant.

Feeling the bride-elect were Julia Moylan, Loretta Maxwell, Mrs. M. J. Connolly, Katherine Ewing, and Julia Murphy.

Dr. Connolly was graduated from Boston College, studied at Boston University and received his medical degree from Tufts Dental School.

Grace O'Donnell To Wed in June

Another wedding of interest is planned for early in June when Grace O'Donnell of Melrose becomes the bride of John Barry of Cambridge. Opening the initial round of the whirl of pre-nuptial events was the buffet supper Marie Barry of Cambridge gave in honor of her future sister-in-law. Assisting in the receiving of the guests was the bride's sister, Katherine, a senior at O'Connor College.

Guests at the affair included Mrs. Frank O'Donnell of Needham, a sister-in-law of the bride-elect, and two of her sisters, Mrs. Edwin Markey of Brookline, the former Kathleen O'Donnell, and Mrs. Edward O'Donnell and Mrs. M. J. O'Donnell.

Others attending the party were Miss Lafferty, Margaret Reid, Tina Wilson, Mrs. Frederick McGinn, Dorothy Hatch, Mary Feeney, Margaret and Rosemary O'Neill.

Grace was graduated from Roxbury High School, and is now a member of the Junior League of Boston. She is active in the Boston Public Club of Cambridge.

Emmanuel Penny Sale on Monday

Emmanuel College alumnae are beating the weather man at his own game. The alumnae group of the college is sponsoring an April shower but in this instance it's a shower of novel prizes and gifts at a penny sale slated for Monday evening in the ballroom of the Hotel Brunswick.

May O'Shea of Cambridge is chairman of the event and assisting her are graduates representing Boston.

From Ayer comes Mary Caborn; from Newton a quartette of active alumnae, Mary Shash, president of the group.

The lovely, lilting tones of "Pink Lady" will be revived for the Teachers' Club for its annual presentation Thursday and Friday evenings at the high school auditorium.

Fred Strauss of the New England Conservatory of Music is directing the affair, assisted by Viola Jackson, Singing leading roles in the production are Daniel Colter and Marion McCarthy who are assisted by a large cast.

Other members of the cast are: Mary Rooney, Mary Lins, Dorothy Neagle, Helen O'Brien, Claire Connor, Ruth and Mary Sweeney, Joseph Regan, Frank Crotty, Arthur Kiebler, Thomas O'Brien, John Collins and Joseph Hickey.

FEDERAL LAW DEAN ASSAILS COURT PLAN

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

Washington, April 7.—Ignatius M. Wilkinson, dean of the Fordham University Law School, today assailed President Roosevelt's court plan as "dangerous to the continuation of constitutional democracy in America."

Declaring such a plan is "neither safe nor wise in a democracy," Dean Wilkinson, an outstanding legal authority, warned by adoption would mark the "beginning of a breakdown in the system of checks and balances" erected by the constitutional fathers to safeguard human liberties.

He urged Congress to discard it in favor of a constitutional amendment, calling for compulsory retirement of federal judges at the age of 70.

Wilkinson was the first to follow the warning issued before the Senate Judiciary committee by Fred T. A. Mason, prominent author and historian.

TRY TO END HEARING

Part of the President's plan, meanwhile, were incurred by the announcement of 70-year-old Senator Hughes (D) of Delaware, that he would offer a motion tomorrow to close the Senate hearings on the proposed court plan.

It appeared the motion would be defeated, since it is opposed by Senator Ashurst (D) of Arizona, committee chairman, who promoted the opposition "in mind time to prevent the plan."

The President has invited a number of constitutional authorities and law professors to testify over the weekend.

OPPOSED ON 4 POINTS

In the House, meanwhile, there was a possibility of action on the Summers bill, to give the government a direct appeal to the Supreme Court from any district court on issues involving the Constitutionality of an act of Congress.

The bill also would authorize the attorney general to intervene in the lower court in private cases involving a constitutional question.

Dean Wilkinson, an author of law text books, said his opposition to the President's plan was based on these four points:

- 1.—The evidence at hand indicates that the addition of justices is unnecessary to enable the court to keep up with its work.
- 2.—The proposed plan in its ultimate effects will tend to undermine the independence of the Supreme Court and, indirectly, of all courts.
- 3.—The precedent necessary set by adoption of the plan may be used at some time in the future to subvert the rights of the individual and the protection of minorities.
- 4.—The plan as proposed is not wholly free from doubts as to its constitutionality.

Police Rescue Man Under Tombstone; Arrest Him, Pal

Worcester, April 7.—No little discouraged was Mervin Butterfield, 35, today when police rescued him from beneath a tombstone and sent him to City Hospital.

The companion, George Hafford, 25, of Thomas street, was also trapped into a cell.

Police looked for Hafford on charges of drunkenness and malicious mischief, although the tombstone which broke Butterfield's leg, had been pushed over in a spirit of vandalism.

The arrest of Butterfield, a Marlboro chef, and Hafford came after the latter had arrived in Webster square and told a policeman that Hafford's friend was under a tombstone in Hope cemetery, but could not get out.

Hafford explained that his friend was a live one and not a regular inmate of the cemetery.

When the tombstone was lifted, Butterfield's leg was found to be broken. He and Hafford told various stories about how the stone happened to fall over.

Civil Service Bill Over to Next Year

Reference to the next annual session will be reported by the Legislative committee on Civil Service on a bill filed by Representative Albert F. Bigelow, of Brooklyn, Republican.

The bill would provide that no new law be passed by the Governor and Council be filed in the future by Civil Service laws. The committee report will be made as a result of such a request by Representative Bigelow.

Dorchester Man Fined in Pool Sale

John Walton, middle-aged Dorchester father, was fined $50 in municipal court today by Judge Francis J. Good on a charge of selling pool balls.

He said that, after working 12 years, he lost his job two weeks ago and had taken to selling tickets in desperation, to support himself and his family.

2 Women Convicts Hunted

Pair Escape From Sherborn

Two women convicts, one sentenced for armed robbery and the other for bigamy, escaped after supper last night from Sherborn reformatory. It was learned today.

Both women worked side by side as seamstresses in the home of an officer, according to Dr. Miriam Vee Walters, superintendent. She said they walked off the grounds on their way to their rooms after supper.

The escaped women are Mrs. Laura Hesse, an attractive blond and former nurse, who lived in the South End, and Mrs. Lillian E. Gamble, 25, of Springfield.

Mrs. Hall, sentenced to five years for armed robbery, was seen by a patrolman on the road last night. She was driving a 1935 Buick sedan.

MRS. LILLIAN E. GAMBLE.

and a day in March, 1936, pleaded guilty in charges amounting out of a $3000 in a Healy street, Boston, and was sentenced to five years for an indeterminate sentence in May, 1936.

HUSBAND A CONVICT

On a tip that Mrs. Hall had returned to her old haunts, Boston police today started a search of the South End. Mrs. Hall, who had a record of 1936 last night, was arrested at 945 last night, communicated with Springfield as she was about to be on the lookout for Mrs. Gamble.

State police at Framingham, who first revealed the escape in a teletype message at 9:45 last night, communicated with Springfield as she was about to be on the lookout for Mrs. Gamble.

car for three men who robbed the chain store manager. She later furnished police information which led to the arrest of the men, who were given state prison sentences.

BALKED JAIL DELIVERY

At the time of her arrest she told police she got $250 as her share from the holdup and afterward her male accomplices took 75 cents back for "expenses."

When police arrested the three men, on her tip, they found a veritable arsenal, including dynamite in a Rutland square, South End, lodging house. Police believed the gang planned a Dedman jail delivery.

During the trial of Mrs. Gamble it was revealed she was the mother of four children, but had been married six times in 10 years. She was characterized by the court as a "serious social problem."

She pleaded guilty in Springfield superior court to bigamy after charges of passing worthless checks had been placed on file.

According to the court records Mrs. Gamble was first married when she was 17. Police said that every time she apparently got tired of her husband she would go off on vacation and get married again.

Quits Home for Love Of Accused Bandit

Told a choice between her family and her love for Robert E. Wallace, accused Kennedy jewel robbery bandit, 29-year-old Miss Margaret MacDonald of Revere was estranged from her mother and living away from home today.

Possible loss of her job as a stenographer in Revere influenced pretty Miss MacDonald no more than did her split with her relatives.

She was "in" to her expressed desire to marry Wallace today, having the wedding in Worcester County jail, he permitted.

Arrested in Providence, March 29, Wallace is held in $75,000 bail on a charge of armed robbery. Police say he participated in a $125,000 jewel holdup, November 20, in the

Around the World in 11 Years With the Abbe Family

The Boston Evening American presents for you the first chapter of "Around the World in Eleven Years," the amazing travelogue book by the famous Abbe children, Patricia, Richard and Johnny Abbe, who have collected in it one of the most remarkable of travel literature—experience of life in still children—and impressions of life in France, Austria, Germany, Russia, England and the United States. The little Abbe children were born in France of American parents, James E. and Polly Platt Abbe. The story was inadvertently ended on Monday and Tuesday. It will continue daily until April 14 in the American and Sunday Adventure.

CHAPTER XVI

One day we were at the carnival, and we met a Nazi with a red band on his hat. He took us to the cafe and gave us ice cream. He was a friend of the submachine gun in the Saxonia Hotel, so that's how we met him. Then he used to come to our studio to see us and brought us cake and apples.

Then they were putting all the Jews out of Germany and the man who was on it was looking at me and he said: "You are a Jew."

"The Swedish woman is living in infamy," he said. "Infamy was that thing that happened to the Germans after the war."

Uncle Follmer

Every Sunday she moved all her furniture around the house to change it. She was always sewing for the baby when it came. Mamma said she had enough clothes for 40 babies, but still she kept right on sewing more.

The night Mamma went to a ball for the ambassador and she wore her Paris evening gown that she had saved. No one in the Follmers recognized Mamma, she looked so chic. But Frau Follmer said she mustn't pin up her corset cover with a pin, so Mamma's dress, so Mamma could stay chic.

He said no one went to a ball with safety pins in their clothes.

Papa Always Away

Mamma always went out and left us in the studio. We used to tell ourselves stories until we went to sleep and we wouldn't go to bed until we had had our supper. You had to open six doors to get into our house, so everything was safe, and besides there was a watchman on the street, who looked like a postman, who walked up and down the street after your gate was locked at eight o'clock.

There are no robbers in Berlin on account of this because the watchman has a gun and looks at all the gates to see they are locked all night long.

Papa was always in London or anywhere, so Mamma was alone with us most the time, so we had her go out at night.

One night when we went to bed Follmer came in and three Frau Follmer. They had a key to our door. Then they had a fight, and Follmer looked in Mamma's bed and said she didn't have any sheets. Mamma had just sent them to the laundry.

Then Frau Follmer said, "If she is that kind of woman, let her sleep without sheets," but Follmer said, "Wouldn't it be nice to get sheets on the bed?"

Then they had a fight, and Follmer looked in Mamma's bed and said she didn't have any sheets. Mamma had just sent them to the laundry.

Winterhelfe

Then one day we came home from school, and Papa was in London and Frau Follmer was there. He was a detective. He wanted to take us to his furniture. Mamma told him the Russian Communists did so he looked around and wrote on the paper:

"Chair for each, bed for each, table, three children." Then he left and Mamma said, "Will you be back?" And he said, "Never."

Then we went to a Winterhelfe party. Mr. O'Donoghue invited us. A man took our coats and gave us a ticket for them. All the children had sick dresses on and because we had sleeping routines on, a lady who was a commercial attaché asked us at us.

But Mamma said, "Just amuse children. She's a snob as you can see." . . . A snob is a lady who walks like a peacock.

Then Uncle Donoghue asked us to go to his party and took us in his car to it, and this lady asked us, but we answered like she had done to us before.

Then Uncle Donoghue took us home after the cocktail party and Johnny and Richard began to fight in the back seat. But Uncle Donoghue didn't get mad. He drove the car with one hand and braced the other hand back and kept Johnny and Richard separated.

One day we had to stay in the house because everybody said there was going to be a war and gas aviators would come and kill us all. Then it didn't happen, but they said they were going to show the children how to wear gas masks in the schools. They wouldn't let them and he a Hitler signed because he was a foreigner.

One day we were walking through the Tiergarten with Jeanne Lyons and she said she was going home and not going to her private school. And we said, "Why?" and she said, "Because I am a Jew. But I am glad I am a Jew." But if Jeanne is a Jew, then Jews don't look bad at all. Jeanne is very handsome. She has black, black hair and violet eyes, and she is very polite and very kind friend.

We do not understand why Hitler hates the Jews. We do not know why the laws were made. We do not know why he is so mean to them. We do not know why he is so mean to them. We do not know why he is so mean to them.

After Hitler I was going to live with George and my mother. These people are so mean to us. They cannot change now. We cannot not to be so mean to us. We are on account of Jews.

FOLLIES' TANK BUILT OVERNIGHT

75 FEET LONG, 30 FEET WIDE

A crew of 35 men at midnight tonight will start the erection at the Arena of a huge tank which will be the setting for the big aquatic production, "Water Follies of 1937," which features Eleanor Holm Jarrett, with Dorothy Poynton Hill, Marshall Wayne, funny-man Bill Lewin and a score of other famed swimmers at Boston Arena.

George V. Brown has allocated 15 hours' time for the construction of the tank, and five of those hours are necessary for filling it.

Building the tank, a matter of those overnight tasks for which the Garden-Arena crew has become famous.

The tank itself will measure 75 feet in length by 30 feet in width by 5 feet in height. The water will be seven feet deep.

Two remarkable diving shots of Eleanor Holm Jarrett, world's outstanding girl swimmer, who will participate in the Water Follies to be staged at the Boston Arena tomorrow night, Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Eleanor will be making her first appearance as a professional here. The former Olympic champion, who was barred from competition in last year's games, proves that she is a qualified diver as well as backstroke champion.

Read her swimming lessons daily in the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser.

As important refinements, there's a change in the shape of the spring leaves and a longer taper at the ends for softer springing and a more comfortable ride. The wheels are fitted with new interior linings for better traction and less wear.

Adjustable front seats are standard, and when more legroom is needed, the front seats fold down. Short drivers, they say, will appreciate the better visibility.

OFF IN WEEK

Substantially Ahead of 1936

New York, April (AP)—Electric power production showed its first important week-to-week decline thus far this year in the week ended April 3, but continued substantially ahead of output a year ago.

Strikes in the industrial Middle West and high temperatures in various parts of the country than are normal experienced this early in April were, among other factors, working for a lowered output power circles said.

The Edison Electric Institute reported output for the United States for the week ended April 3 at 10,340,000 kilowatt-hours, up from 10,000,000 a year ago.

cent from 2,200,143,000 the previous week. The increase over production of 1,867,093,000 kilowatt hours

States totaled 2,146,956,000 watt hours, a decline of 2.4 per cent from 2,206,143,000 the previous week. The increase over production of 1,867,093,000 kilowatt hours in the same period last year was 15.0 per cent. In the preceding week the increase over the 1964 comparative was 18.1 per cent.

Several sections of the country reflected the lowered output, narrowed gains over a year ago. Percentage increases over the comparative for the major geographic regions were: New England, 11.4; Middle Atlantic, 12.1; Central industrial, 16.8; West, 14.1; Rocky Mountain, 16.8; South, 6.9; Southern states, 6.9; Rocky mountain, 32.7; Pacific, 32.7.

Bristol-Myers'

Bristol-Myers' Net Shows Gain

Bristol-Myers Co. for the 12 months ended March 31, 1937, probably show the largest net income for any first quarter in past five years. Net profit will equal to not less than $1 a share on the 667,168 shares of stock against $659,856, or 96 cent share on 686,998 shares of stock the first quarter of 1936.

Family Estimated

Family Estimates

Finished steel in the United States per average family, a sharp increase from 1700 pounds per family a year since 1929.

Only 1060 pounds of finished steel were consumed per average family in 1929. The only major setbacks in the rise occurred in 1908 and 1914 when consumption per family dropped to 1128 and 1075 pounds, respectively, and during the recession, when consumption per family dropped as low as 1000 pounds in the year 1932.

Approximate consumption of finished steel per year is estimated by adding to the amount of lashed steel produced in this country, the amount imported from other countries, and then deducting tonnage exported.

How can official machinery for bringing workers and jobs together be made more useful?

Complaints about difficulty in locating United States employment service agencies seem thoroughly justified.

Take New York. Any idle worker who looked up the United States employment service, under that head, in the telephone directory, would not find it recorded.

If the searcher continued, and turned to "U. S. Government," he would find, under the subdivision of "Labor," that he should seek turn to "New York State Employment Service." Next, he would discover 10 different listings, covering six different addresses, only one of

Where the United States Employment Service works in conjunction with the state employment service, it is usually listed, as explained, under the name of the state, such as Pennsylvania State Employment Service, Illinois State Employment Service, New York State Employment Service. Where there is no state employment service, U. S. Employment Service offices should be found listed under "U. S. Government," "U. S. Department of Labor," or "National Employment Service."

Surely, a better arrangement could be devised. Utilization of cross listings would seem to be the solution.

Extracts from letters:

James P. McCabe: "In your column you mention the United States Employment Service. I do not find any office listed in the telephone book."

Edward Gerszick: "I have been registered with the U. S. Employment Service since June, 1934. I have never been called for a job."

Leslie W. Walburn: "Called at the U. S. Employment Service over a year ago, waited several hours, answered questions, I have heard nothing further."

From an official:

"I have had my name in the state employment office since December. If I can't get anything soon, I will be forced to go to the

This interesting letter comes from C. B. Reinecke, County, Miss. "I showed your column to the girl in charge of the chicken processing office. She smiled and said there was nothing doing now. I am fed. I am now raising chickens. I went out the loud C-C camp to sell them chickens, but they told me all their chickens come from the packing houses.

"Why can I get a contract to furnish chickens?" I was told the chickens they get were not good, and when I showed them my chickens they said they would rather have them, but there was nothing they could do about it."

W. E. Klein, Oakland, Cal. The U. S. employment service does not find an employer for the applicant, but helps the employer to find an employee. No one seems to be trying to create new conditions. This institution seems to concern itself only with labor or groups of employers who represent large numbers. Other classes of employers are simply out of luck."

One cannot serve the complainer that there is room for improvement, especially for co-operation and aggressiveness in the governmental line of endeavor.

CONSUMER INCOME

N. E. Gain
Seen in Months
Ahead

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Consumer incomes in the New England states in the next six months are expected to gain 22 per cent over the similar 1935 period, according to the current Brookline Income Map.

This is a somewhat smaller gain than the section recorded a year ago and it is below the estimated gain for the country as a whole.

However, when the rapid improvement registered last year is considered, the outlook for New England from now through August is not as disappointing as comparisons might make it appear. Also it should be noted that a breakdown of general trade indices reveals many cheerful indications. Farm income has been lagging and by promise to continue to do so. Cotton textile activity has shown a more substantial gain in this section than in the rest of the South and trade levels are likely to improve. Manufacturing payrolls are well above 1935 levels and even though the rate at which new orders are being placed has slowed it is logical to expect payrolls to continue to build up.

The recent blizzard delivered against high consumer prices seem to have disturbed the market for raw copper. Accordingly, the price of the metal has fallen to the level of the technical position of the metal with an eye toward determining probable future trends. Since the real activity took place in London—some say it is speculative—let's first consider views there. Almost to a man, financial circles in that city believe the blizzard will fail to halt the long-term rise. They regard it as being confined on something better than speculation. In fact, on real copper demand, whether for war purposes or industrial use is not of importance. The principal point is that the metal has gone into use or will soon.

Notebook: Now if the hypothesis that solid demand was the basic force behind the move in copper is accepted—and many writers doubt it—there is much room left for speculation. One might conceivably say that copper prices simply made up the fringe anxiety to participate, creating an unwelcome and excited atmosphere. Their total holdings probably did not bulk large in the picture. . . . But we believe it to be the current holding has established a firm technical position and that copper prices should work higher in time.

The stock market will find in the narrow ray of recent weakness in commodities and false London reports on the United States gold buying policy may have been responsible for the actual selling of some extent, but the market that prices may have been ripe for a tumble. As we write, the market is still in the doldrums. It looks as though the tide would close with a stormy portend, but in the light of the recent trading in metals signs. A fair promise of a rally tomorrow, or in the next few days, we suggest those who have failed to realize accounts in line with previous advice here are all about. In this writer's opinion.

Barndorn Briefs: Western Union is still in poor repute, but the reason . . . Labor costs have risen . . . the statistical authorities have figured out that the recent wage increases authorized will amount to $2.48 per year. . . . Which means . . . There are reports expressed that a further increase will be granted in the next year. . . . And since the company can not pass along increased costs readily the pinch will be on up to men that increased tolls plus more efficient operation make up the difference. . . . It seems to us that we would be the stock holder who would really be in here if the market does.

Crude Output Off

Oil & Gas Journal estimates domestic daily average crude oil output for week ended April 3, 3,426,440 barrels, a decrease of 42,420 barrels from the preceding week.
